Kids Learn and Play with Pioneering Storytime Yoga Camp at Kripalu July 22-24

Body-centered learning program teaches literacy, fitness and character

BOULDER, Colo. (February 10, 2011) – This summer, bring your family on a journey they won't forget. This July, come to the Storytime Yoga Children's Camp with Yoga Teacher and Storyteller Sydney Solis at Kripalu. Let Sydney re-enchant your child's world and make learning exciting with Storytime Yoga. Meanwhile, you can take the adult program or retreat at the center.

Kids will move, create, learn and have fun at the same time while developing their talents! At the Kripalu Kids' Yoga Camp in Stockbridge, MA, children ages 5-11 will have fun with storytelling, yoga, meditation, art, nature, and creating a body myth. As they reenact stories by performing various yoga poses, your kids will not only get rejuvenating physical activity, they'll also receive a boost to their literacy, learning, and health.

Storytime Yoga's camp activities integrate oral storytelling, literacy and art with the health-enhancing physical aspects of yoga and meditation. It's a spellbinding way for children to connect with their imaginations, discover the hero within, and learn how to bring their unique gifts and talents to the world.

Don't miss out on this magical and spiritual summer for you and your family!

The camp will be take place:

- July 22-24, 2011 Friday–Sunday (three-day event)

To register for any of these events, call 1-866-200-5203.
